* These Universities have granted TOEFL waivers in the past, if so requested by an email well before the submission of the application. The email should explain that English was the language of instruction at Law School, that all your transcripts and other documents are in English and that you have grown up in an English speaking environment. Send the TOEFL waiver application around September-early October as November onwards people in admissions departments get busy with applications and may take long time to respond thereby delaying your application process.

 Check website for the TOEFL Waiver Policy. Many Universities provide that TOEFL is mandatory for some students; however you should still try sending them an email explaining your position and requesting a TOEFL waiver.

 TOEFL Policy of this University entitles you to claim a TOEFL waiver (i.e. automatic waiver if English was the language of instruction at your law school).
